The Institute for Global Leadership

Consultation and training for leaders in a post-September 11th world

The Institute for Global Leadership began in the months following September 11, 2001 when Virginia Swain was in the United Nations in New York during the World Trade Center attack.

Over 10 years, the IGL contributed a rich history of presentations, consultations and training in new leadership models, courses and programs designed and implemented by Virginia Swain at the United Nations and supported by Patron Ambassador Anwarul K. Chowdhury. We are a member of The Global Compact., connecting the United Nations to business. Our specialties are certificate programs in Reconciliation Leadership* and Leading from Your Life's Passion. Since 2008, we have led trips from New England to the United Nations. For upcoming trips, go to http://www.global-leader.org/gl_news.htm

In 2010 we have expanded our services in an alliance with ChangeWise and the award-winning book, Leadership Agility, global-leader.org, click on Who We Are.

Our Mission: The Institute for Global Leadership provides confidential, compassionate and skilled guidance, consultation and training to help leaders and teams through change, challenges and crises. We recognize all human beings, institutions, nations and multi-lateral entities for their uniqueness, need and capacity for transformation.
